

CREATIVE LAND TRUST ACQUIRES AFFORDABLE WORKSPACE AT STONE STUDIOS

Telford Homes is delighted to announce that Creative Land Trust has acquired 33,000 sq. ft of affordable workspace at our Stone Studios development in Hackney Wick.

Founded in 2019, the Creative Land Trust aims to secure long term, affordable workspace for London's artists and creatives. The charity has taken ownership of the space, which will provide long-term, genuinely affordable studios for local artists and creatives across the borough and the wider city. The space will accommodate up to 18 studios, whilst also building on the vibrant and distinctive nature of the Hackney Wick area; locking in cultural benefits and creating new economic opportunities for local residents. The workspace will include street frontage studios, highlighting the area's heritage of creative light industry.

Simon Halfhide, Group Sales Director at Telford Homes, commented "Hackney Wick has a creative legacy spanning generations, and we are committed to preserving and building on that with our Stone Studios development. We're delighted to partner with Creative Land Trust to help us achieve this goal - providing quality, affordable workspace for local artists and creatives to help consolidate and strengthen the local community and maintain its unique spirit."

This acquisition is the first in what will become a portfolio of properties owned by Creative Land Trust, and marks a substantial step towards the Trust's goal of securing 1000 affordable workspaces for London's artists and makers.
